

Fantastic Fowey

THE Fowey Tourist Board and local organisers were delighted with the way Jubilee events took off in the town over the weekend.

Arthur Baker, who has been working with the town's Jubilee Committee since January, said the celebrations were fantastic.

There were several street tea parties throughout the town. And the new Mayor of Fowey, Mr Tony Ryde, made a point of visiting each one.

One particular highpoint of the celebrations was The Funny Bone Theatre's performance of Little Red Riding Hood. The youngest performer was only eight years old.

Town Quay was bustling in the evening as St Austell Band played a selection of well known favourites and everyone joined in the finale of the National Anthem before enjoying a dramatic firework display which lit up the harbour backdrop.

Fowey Funnybone Theatre performed their version of Little Red Riding Hood to the audience in the town hall.
